Re: Notice of Credential Stuffing Incident

Dear <<Name 1>>:

We are writing to follow up with you about a recent credential stuffing incident involving your Zola account. Taking care of our couples is our top priority here at Zola, and we sincerely apologize for any stress or concern this incident may have caused you. We understand events like this can be unsettling, and because of this, we want to provide you with further information about what happened and the steps we have taken to protect your information.

WHAT HAPPENED?

On May 21, 2022, we detected unusual activity on our website and mobile application that prompted us to investigate immediately. Our investigation determined that, beginning on May 20, 2022, our website and mobile application had come under a form of attack known as "credential stuffing." Credential stuffing is when cyber attackers use email addresses/usernames and passwords stolen from another source, such as a breach of another website, to gain unauthorized access to user accounts. Based on our investigation, we believe that the cyber attacker in this incident previously gained access to the email address and password for your Zola account from another source (not from Zola). As a result, the unauthorized actor may have accessed certain information stored within, or may have conducted unauthorized activity on, your Zola account. Within hours of determining that a credential stuffing attack had occurred, our Trust & Safety Team decided, out of an abundance of caution, to reset passwords for all Zola registered users, regardless of whether suspicious activity was detected on their account. We have also reported the incident to law enforcement and worked to address or reverse any known unauthorized account activity.

WHAT INFORMATION WAS INVOLVED?

As described above, we believe that the cyber attacker obtained your email address and the password for your Zola account from another source. Using these credentials, the unauthorized actor may have accessed information stored on your account, such as your name, purchase history, shipping address, phone number and the amount of Zola store credit on your account (if any). If you saved your credit or debit card information or your bank account information to your Zola account, the unauthorized actor was able to view the partial information listed below.

- If you saved your payment card to your Zola account, the unauthorized actor was able to view the last four digits of your card number, the expiration date and the billing address. The unauthorized actor was not able to view your full card number or your CVV (the short code on the back of your card), because we do not store that information on Zola's systems.
- If you saved your bank account information to your Zola account, the unauthorized actor was able to view the last four digits of your bank account number and the name of your bank. The unauthorized actor was not able to view your full bank account number, routing number or date of birth, because we do not store this information on Zola's systems.

WHAT WE ARE DOING

Zola values your privacy and deeply regrets that this incident occurred. As soon as we found out about the unusual activity, we began working around the clock to protect our couples, swiftly investigating the incident, immediately notifying our community and resetting passwords for all Zola registered users. We are engaged in a continual process to enhance our security measures, including working with an external security company in addition to our internal Trust & Safety Team to protect our community.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

As described above, we have already reset your password, which you can change at https://www.zola.com/account/forgot-password. We urge you to choose a password that is strong and unique to Zola. If you used your previous password on other sites we highly recommend you also change your password on those sites. While we have no reason to believe that any further unauthorized use of your information will occur as a result of this incident, credential stuffing attacks are increasingly common, and we always encourage you to remain vigilant in monitoring your account statements and credit reports for unauthorized activity. If you ever notice any unusual activity on your Zola account, please reach out to us at firstresponse@zola.com. Please also review the attachment to this letter (Steps You Can Take to Further Protect Your Information) for further information on steps you can take to protect your information.

Steps You Can Take to Further Protect Your Information

Monitor Your Accounts

Under U.S. law, a consumer is entitled to one free credit report annually from each of the three major credit reporting bureaus: Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. To order your free credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call, toll-free, 1-877-322-8228. You may also directly contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below to request a free copy of your credit report.

Consumers have the right to place an initial or extended "fraud alert" on a credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a one-year alert that is placed on a consumer's credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer's credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer's identity before extending new credit. If you are a victim of identity theft, you are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting seven years. Should you wish to place a fraud alert, please contact any one of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below.

As an alternative to a fraud alert, consumers have the right to place a "credit freeze" on a credit report, which will prohibit a credit bureau from releasing information in the credit report without the consumer's express authorization. The credit freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a credit freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit. Pursuant to federal law, you cannot be charged to place or lift a credit freeze on your credit report. To request a credit freeze, you will need to provide the following information:

1. Full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.);
2. Social Security number;
3. Date of birth;
4. Addresses for the prior two to five years;
5. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill or telephone bill;
6. A legible photocopy of a government-issued identification card (state driver's license or ID card, military identification, etc.); and
7. A copy of either the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft if you are a victim of identity theft.

Should you wish to place a fraud alert or credit freeze, please contact any of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below:
